STULLER

STULLER TRIED AND TESTED

What Tools Do We Use In Our Manufacturing?

This is the #1 question asked by our customers. You want to know. And we're excited to share. If you visit us in Lafayette, Louisiana, the tools in this brochure will be in our hands.

Stuller Tried and Tested

Sounds obvious, right? At Stuller, it's not that simple. For products to be marked with the Stuller Tried & Tested stamp in our catalogs, on our website, and in our brochures, they have to prove themselves.

The Chosen Ones

Our manufacturing experts work with a range of tools and equipment every day. They have strong opinions and suggestions. And they are very willing to share them. We heed their advice when choosing new products to add to our line.

Everything in this brochure has been extensively tested in actual manufacturing scenarios, in both real-time and lab settings. We bang them up and push them to their limits day after day. If they get chosen to be a part of our team, they've got to be good.
